

THE EVENING STAR.
WASHINGTON.
THURSDAY, October 31, 1895.
CROSBY S. NOYES, Editor.

THE EVENING STAR has a regular and permanent Family Circulation much more than the combined circulation of the other Washington dailies. As a News and Advertising Medium it has no competitor.

In order to avoid delays, on account of personal absence, letters to THE STAR should not be addressed to any individual connected with the office, but simply to THE STAR, or to the Editor or Business Department, according to tenor or purpose.

Quick Trials and Their Results.
With unprecedented celerity a court of Alexandria yesterday indicted and sentenced to death a youth who had committed, on Monday, a serious offense in that community. Doubtless much of the haste shown by the legal officers of the city was inspired by a belief that a lynching spirit was abroad, and that the lad might be hanged by a mob in the event of any delay. While the punishment may seem severe, yet a witness before the court testified by the quick and comparatively economical trial, which completely satisfied the agitated residents, and the verdict of which, if the evidence were reliable, was quite in accordance with the facts. It is believed that many of the lynchings that occur in the south are due to the impatience felt by the people at the law's delays, and it was but a few months ago that in a more southern state mob violence was prevented by the promise of the local judge to hold a special term of court to try the prisoner against whom the anger of the citizens had been excited. If Alexandria should show as much enterprise and determination in the matter of ridding itself of the nest of thieves, thugs and gamblers now menacing not only the city down the river, but the capital of the nation, even more good would be accomplished and the fair name of the region across the Potomac would be spared from much ill repute abroad.

The European Situation.
European politics continue to present varying phases. The war scare in the east, the supposed Russian advances in China have been exploded on the receipt of news that the early reports from Hong Kong were erroneous, but Great Britain is still on the alert lest there should be enough truth in these reports of Russian aggrandizement on the Asiatic coast to threaten seriously the British dominance in that region. Meanwhile the Turkish situation reaches a state once more, and reports of fresh massacres are received to indicate that the Sultan has either lost his control over his subjects or else has been deliberately deceiving the European powers by his pretended desire to institute reforms. Intelligence comes from Constantinople that the Sultan is in fear of his life and has become practically a negative factor in the administration of the affairs of the empire. The reasons that influenced Great Britain in assuming an offensive attitude against Russia for Asiatic acquisitions of territory and influence prevail in the case of Turkey. The difficulty that at present exists in France over the southern railway scandals, culminating in a resignation of the ministry, is not apt to have a marked effect upon the general European situation, although it indicates that the French republic is at all times subject to political upheavals on account of domestic matters, whereas, in the light of the recent Madagascar campaign, it appears that there is little disposition to quarrel with the ministry of an aggressive foreign policy.

More Railway Shortcomings.
Yesterday's accident at Eckington shows how the grade-crossing evil spreads when once it has become established. This populous suburb is really a continuation of Washington, and yet it has absolutely no more protection from rapidly moving trains than any cow pasture in the farming districts. There should be gates and flagmen at every road crossing the tracks all along the populous region traversed by this road, and until such facilities are provided the slaughter and maiming will continue, to the exasperation of the people and the expense of the corporation that, with a false notion of economy, refuses to provide these means of preventing accidents. Doubtless the sums annually paid by the railroads for damages would quite cover the expense of maintaining complete systems of road protection, with a comfortable margin over.

Keep the Latches Down.
Sneak thieves are growing bold as the mercury falls into winter's ranges, and the householders of the District must take the usual precautions against visitations from the light-fingered folks. A stout latch on each outer door will discourage a great majority of these unbecomingly attentions, for few of the hat and coat thieves are men of nerve, nor do they belong to the ranks of more serious offenders, such as burglars. The case of pifering is the main incentive for front-hall stealings. These offenses are most frequent at the dinner hour, when the upper portions of the house are untenanted, and a moment of carelessness may result in the loss of a hundred dollars' worth of property that could have been easily saved by operating a fifty-cent latch. The police cannot be held responsible for the frequency of these robberies as long as unlicked front doors invite the light-fingered passers-by to help themselves.

The citizens of New Orleans are already planning a celebration of the centennial of the Louisiana purchase from France. The project includes an exposition to be held at the Crescent City in 1903, and thus upwards of eight years' time is allowed for the enterprise to ripen. One of the local publications now booming the proposition deems that the experience of Atlanta is a warning of the loss of the city to the enterprise. It is not of great value to be of great value to the city, and it is not of great value to the city, and it is not of great value to the city.

Shooting Stars.
The vagaries of Fate.
One fortune shrinks while others swell,
Some laugh while others sorrow;
One man must purchase his umbrella,
While others only borrow.

All Sorts.
"This country wants to show more consideration toward its trusted servants," said the man who objects to the cartoonist. "Yes," was the reply, "but the difficulty is that some of them are sugar-trusted servants."

Well Planned.
"Jeremiah," said the candidate's wife, "do you think your campaign has been successful?"
"Well," replied he, after figuring for two or three minutes on the margin of a newspaper, "I guess it's about as successful so far as the amount of 'em. If I am elected my salary during my term of office will come within a few hundred dollars of paying the expenses I have incurred."

A Comparison of Courtiers.
"I have done or compliment from Mr. 'Rastus Pinkley,'" said Miss Sophronia Jones.
"Did yer, sho' ruff?" was the somewhat contemptuous rejoinder from Miss Euphemia Snowflake.

The School Girl.
A-down the street she gaily goes,
This happy, careless maiden,
With cheeks which might outblush the rose
And lips with laughter laden.

Thirty Days' Useless Delay.
It is unfortunate that under the law granting the District Commissioners power to make police regulations they are compelled to give thirty days' notice to the steam railroad companies of their order compelling all trains to stop before crossing rapid-transit street-car lines. The grade-crossings have existed many years, with their attendant evils and the outcry against them. The steam roads have in the past shown no consideration whatever for the people or for the authorities, and it is indeed a waste of money now to grant them grace for their delay when full compliance with the order necessitates only a few hours of preparation on the part of the several transportation companies entering the city. With the complete telegraphic equipment ready at hand, and the perfect organization to carry out in every detail the orders of the railroad authorities, the Commissioners' regulation might with perfect ease and without the least extra hardship have been put into complete effect last Monday, the order having been signed Saturday. The past thirty days thus needlessly slapping before an enforcement of the order may be expected to produce several accidents. Indeed, the situation is such that the Commissioners would probably be justified in requiring obedience to the regulation at the outset, holding this to be an emergency warranting the abrogation of the thirty-day clause. The clause was intended to prevent surprises by the local authorities, to give every one affected by new regulations a chance to be informed and to comply, but there is no need of such consideration in the case of three or four great corporations, reached by letter within a few hours, and already thoroughly informed of the state of affairs.

The Anacostia Strike.
Public sympathy will generally be extended to the striking employees of the Anacostia railway if they preserve order and stand upon their demand for living wages, but that sympathy will surely be withdrawn if the men resort to violence or permit their friends to commit overt acts while the railroad company is endeavoring, as it has a perfect right, to operate the road. The men won the former strike because the citizens were on their side. The people of Anacostia refused to patronize the line as long as the company insisted upon maintaining starvation wages, and this influence proved a powerful aid to the employees. It is unfortunate that the community across the river should be so harassed by the frequent failure of its means of transportation, and the burden of responsibility upon those who order a strike is the greater because the townspeople are forced to depend upon one line. If the residents of Anacostia had the other means of getting into the city, the case would be far different, but the strike assumes a grave responsibility in any case whenever he interferes with any public agency, whatever may be its final value to its patrons.

A Welcome Storm.
The skies have opened and the rain, so long delayed and so sadly needed, has come at last. There was an immediate and pressing demand for the rain in the forest fires in this vicinity, especially in the Rock Creek Park, the chief beauty of which depends upon its trees. This blaze had yesterday assumed serious proportions and menaced not only the park itself, but the surrounding property. But in addition the rain has brought relief to the farmers, the manufacturers and thousands of interests affected by the great water famine. The growth has been felt not only in this region but nearly the entire area of the United States, and the present storm is general enough and promises to last sufficiently long to encourage a belief that the costly dry spell has at last been broken. If this be the case, the country is to be congratulated, and it will approach Thanksgiving Day in the mood to fully appreciate the meaning of the occasion.

The wet weather means another day or so of delay in the completion of the post office building, but mere matters of weeks, days and hours are trifles in this magnificent study in time-consumption.

Mr. Algeed is evidently familiar with that old principle in politics—that it costs nothing to refuse what you cannot get, and may make a good impression.

John L. Sullivan in refusing to express an opinion of the Corbett-Fitzsimmons conversation shows that a great diplomatist is not necessarily a great statesman.

With Mr. Bowler on the stage, Mr. Holman of Indiana must realize his great role of Watch-dog is developing a dangerous understudy.

As an editor Senator Chandler is in the position to spring a ready-made "scoop" whenever he happens to feel like it.

Russia has observed ever since that England has a variation of the Monroe Doctrine for her own use on Asiatic territory.

The jury-fixer must go. It is too hard to get an ideal juror in the first place to run any risk of having him spoiled.

The Sultan of Persia would make an interesting subject for some specialist in the doctrine of total depravity.

The Governor of Arkansas is determined to prevent this fight, even if he has to have a bigger one to do it.

Chesley's hardware news
—what a store sells and how low it sells it—this is news—store-news and the lower it sells—the more interesting the news. We intend to make our news "INTENSELY INTERESTING."

51.50 SILVER HANDLED PENKNIVES FOR 74c.
There is no reason why a jeweler should charge $1.50 for a 2-bladed silver handled penknife—but they do—and what is more, they sell lots of 'em every day at that price.

FELT WEATHER STRIPS, 2c. FOOT.
Nothing much to say about our felt weather strips—except that they're the VERY BEST MADE. We could send a man to put 'em up for you like the other stores do—and "charge you extra" for it like the other stores do—but really there's no need of it—you could weather strip your whole house in an hour—and then say it was the easiest hour's work you ever did. Save the extra charge—put up your own strips! We'll tell you how to do it. We'll help you save money everywhere we can.

THE BEST GAS HEATERS EVER SOLD—$2.20.
The same applies to our gas heaters as to everything else—if not satisfactory—bring 'em back and get your money. These are the best gas heaters we ever sold at "any price!" They consume just 20 cubic feet of gas per hour!
That costs just 24c. per hour.
And they will heat a 16x16 room thoroughly in "COLD WEATHER."

"OUR NATIVE HERBS"
Strikes at the root and cause of all ailments—impure blood. Purely vegetable in composition—powder of roots, herbs and barks. Sufficient in treatment.

A printed guarantee in each box insures benefit, or money promptly refunded. A vast number of grateful letters testify to the wonderful curative powers of "Our Native Herbs."

Rockers.
We haven't said much about our Rockers—but that new line we've just gotten in is worthy of more than casual mention. Full of strong, slightly songable chairs—and prices are pleasingly small. See them.

Another New Lot of Brass Beds Just In.
We're selling them fast. The price attraction is irresistible.

Tapestry Carpets, 67c.
Fine quality, pretty patterns, for room, hall or stair. No need to tell you what the price ought to be—you can see it.
